Gregory Letare
FOUNDER & CEO

Gregory is an innovator and entrepreneur who founded Orbotix Technology with a clear vision to enhance the safety and effectiveness of operators on the battlefield. Drawing on his military background and extensive experience collaborating with law enforcement and special forces worldwide, Gregory recognized the need for updated systems and technology that could better protect those on the front lines.

He envisioned creating products that are not only innovative but also easy to use for any soldier, requiring minimal training and additional skills. Gregory's commitment to adapting technology to the realities of the battlefield is at the core of Orbotix's mission, driving the development of solutions that are both practical and life-saving.

Bogdan Ochiana
FOUNDER & COO

Bogdan is a former management consultant and serial entrepreneur with a global perspective, having lived, studied, and worked across North America, Asia, and Europe. His adaptability and ability to seize key opportunities have been instrumental in shaping Orbotix's mission.

Bogdan envisioned Orbotix as a company that would contribute to a united and strategically autonomous Europe, focusing on the production of defense systems within the region. His belief in the importance of preparedness is reflected in his frequent reference to the quote by Roman military strategist Vegetius: "If you want peace, prepare for war." This philosophy drives Bogdan's commitment to ensuring that Europe remains independent and capable in its defense efforts.
